

Research into Energy Therapy using RFI™ Aura and Brain Imaging

It was a number of years ago, June 2004, when I first encountered William Two Feathers, we were both exhibiting at a Mind Body and Soul Festival in Adelaide, South Australia and both of us were visitors to the area. At the beginning and end of each day during the 3 day event, William would walk around the exhibition cleansing the area and setting the space with his drumming. The energy workers attending the show very much appreciated what he was doing, I know I did.

I didn't see much of him during the 3 days, all of us too busy working and consulting with our own clients to socialise and meet with fellow travellers, however, at the end of the show, William Two Feathers approached both me and my husband, Peter, and asked if we would be interested in working with some of his clients to quantify his healing.

We work with a bio-energy feedback analysis system and had done so for many years. The system scientifically quantifies the subtle body (the aura). The hand-held scanner reads the frequency of the person's electro-magnetic discharge or energy field and the numbers are entered into the software program that converts the frequency to colour and its from the colour that we can analyse and quantify the aura. The system is quite different from the aura photographs that most people are familiar with in that the image that is created is of the entire body, the physical chakras and it also gives an internal brain image.

As you can see from the picture below it's a little like a jelly bean man, however, the image gives so much information about what is going on in the person's environment and what is impacting on them; how the energy around them affects their physical wellbeing and how they react to it in their everyday lives. It also shows physiologically what is happening internally and how their glandular system is reacting as well as how their thoughts and mental activity is processed, both incoming and outgoing thoughts. The image also gives a good indication of how the person feels about being here and where they're at spiritually. Overall, it gives a psychological, physiological and psychospiritual profile.

We have been using the Resonant Field Imaging™ system since 1997/98 when I was doing some research into the quantification of the aura and discovered ITEM's site on the internet. I immediately contacted them and bought one of their systems and since that time have sold many of them as ITEM's licensed distributor for Australia and New Zealand, that's how impressed I was with the equipment and software.

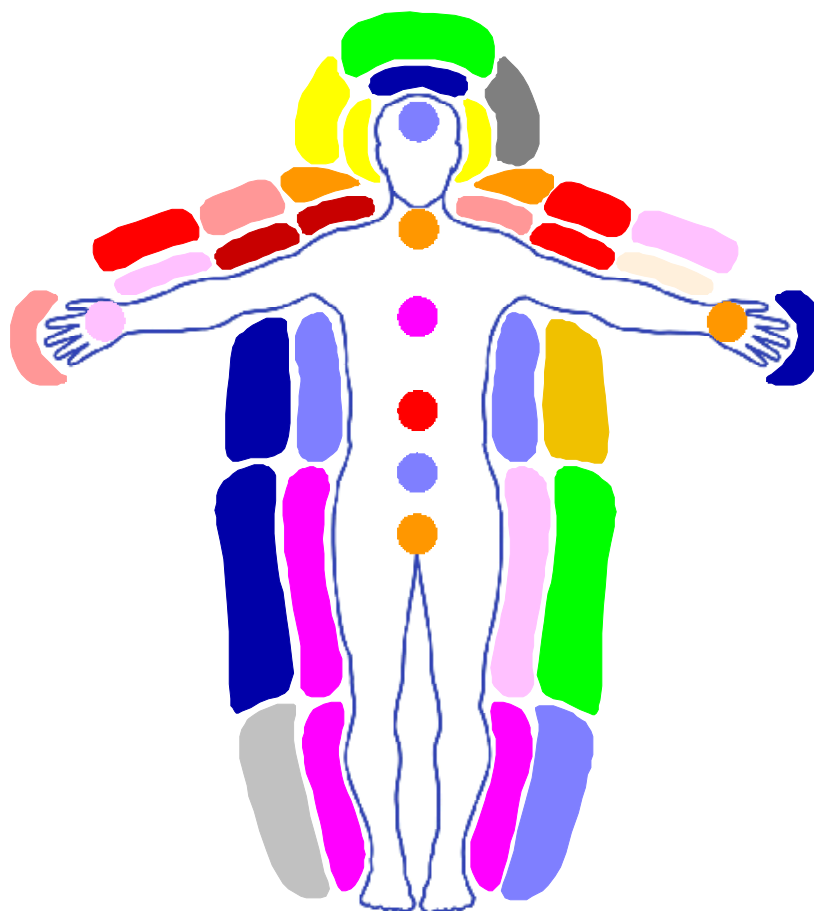

Since discovering the RFI™ we have used it to scan thousands of people all over Australia during exhibits at various Mind Body and Spirit and Holistic Health festivals in Melbourne, Brisbane, Canberra, Sydney, Darwin, Adelaide, Cairns, Townsville, Toowoomba, Hervey Bay, Gympie, Noosa, Surfers' Paradise, Mt. Isa and Alice Springs.

At the conclusion of the Adelaide festival when William Two Feathers became familiar with what we were doing, he asked us if we would involve ourselves with his work to quantify the change in energy before and after his consults with clients. We had a couple of days to spare before our return to Queensland and so agreed to meet up with him the following day at a health and wellbeing clinic in one of the Adelaide suburbs.

We spent the entire day scanning both William and his clients before and after each healing. Peter would scan the client, I would enter the data into the system and then analyse and interpret the energy or the image, William would consult with his client and then we would repeat the process and then William and I would compare our findings and analyse the results. It was a fascinating day and one that gave us much insight.

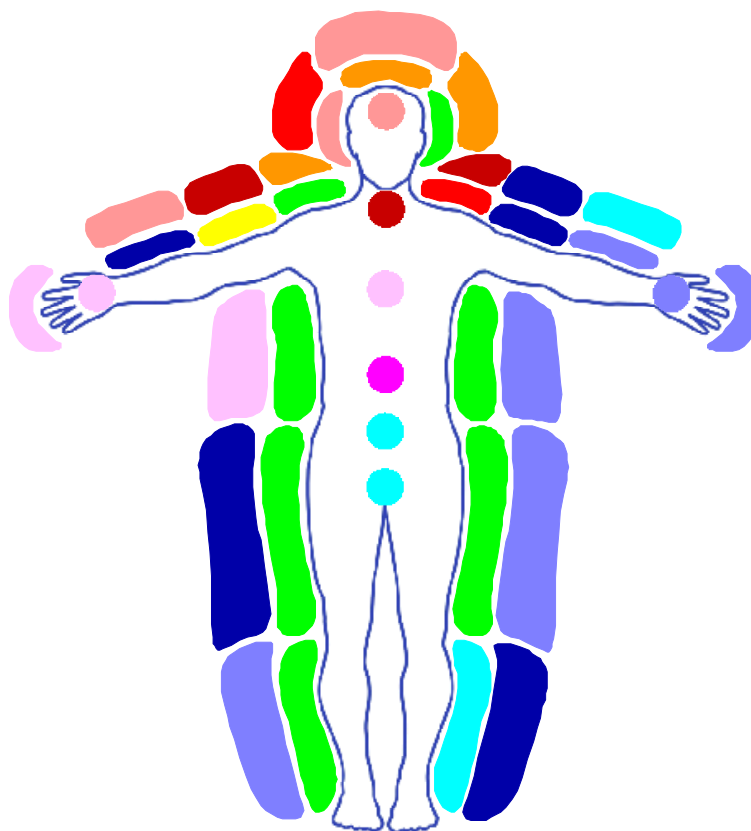

The image below is William prior to smudging and cleansing his energy field.

Example 1.

Before each client, William would use a smudge stick of sage and other herbs to cleanse his energy and below is the image 5 minutes after Example 1.

Example 2.

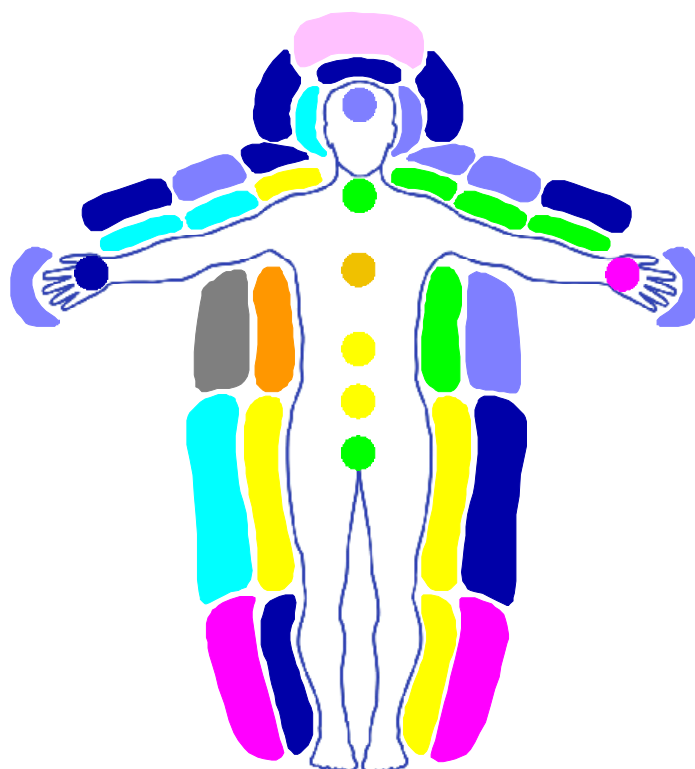

What is most noticeable after William's smudging was completed, Example 2 is the pink colours around his head are a lot softer as well as the green close in around the body. Pink being associated with unconditional love and green with healing. The aqua colour seen in the two lower chakras and on the left of the body relate to being empathetic and are often seen in those people who "pick-up" on energy or who can "feel" another's energy field. Its an excellent colour to have in the subtle body if you are an energy worker. However, all too often I find it in the aura of sensitive people who find the impact of other people's energy quite invasive and in some instances quite debilitating.

The orchid or pale pink colour around his right hand indicates that William uses this hand to sense the energy and feel where work is needed and his left hand showing the blue colour he uses to balance and calm the energy.

William's first client had met him the previous day at the exhibition but did not have time to have a full healing and although she didn't have any major health problems, she did have a tendency to worry too much and over-analyse problems rather than acting on them.

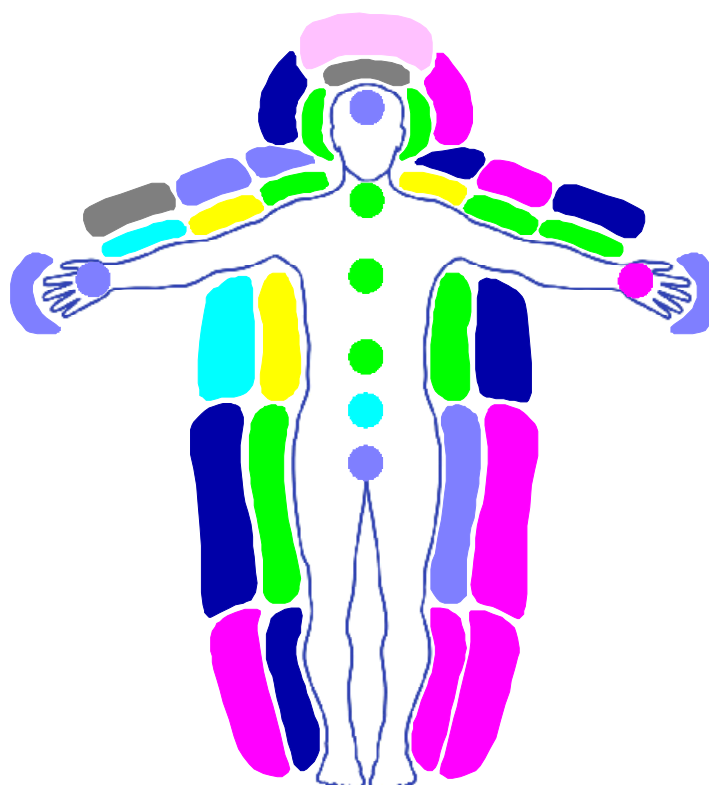

As you can see in Example 3, the blue and navy colours around the top part of the body is indicative of someone who does a lot of thinking, perhaps too much thinking which causes stress and anxiety which can lead to depression. Hence the saying "being in a blue mood", or "having the blues".

Example 3 - before healing.

The client had a generally positive outlook on life but felt she didn't get a lot of support at work where she had to make most of the decisions in her management role. The lack of support shows up in the aura as the black and orange colours around the right side of the body. The blue and navy around the head indicate she works in an academic area and displays leadership and management abilities

Example 4 – after the healing.

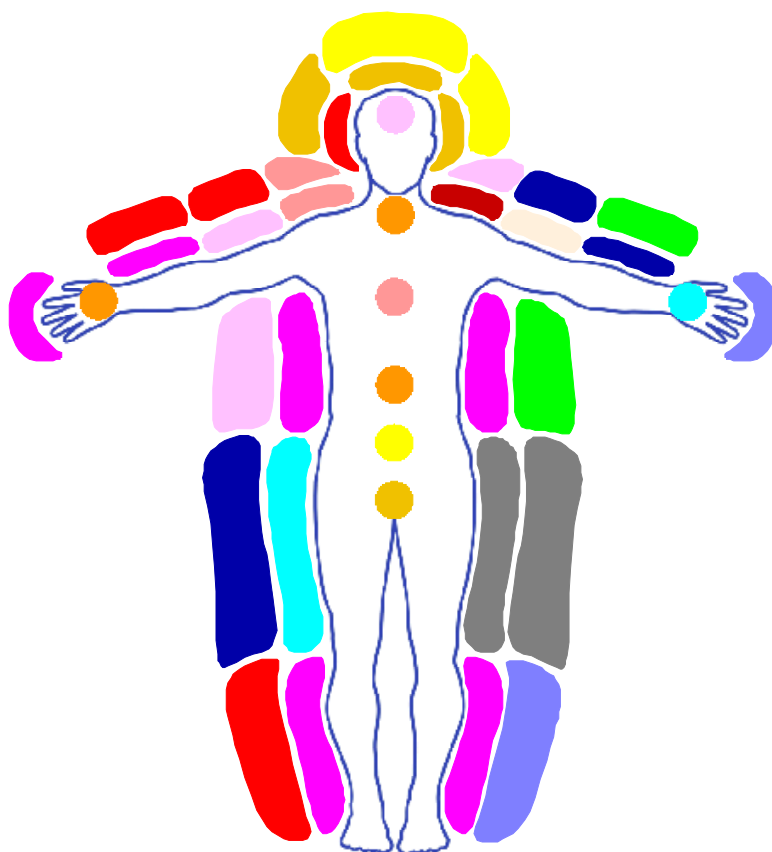

The image in Example 4 was taken 1 hour later and the colours and energy are a lot softer after William's energy healing. Most noticeable are the chakras which are nearly all green, indicating there has been an increase in blood flow to the glandular systems connected to the particular chakras. Some of the blue and navy colour has dissipated and been replaced with softer pink and purple and lighter blue.

The black/grey colour above the crown chakra indicates the person was in a deep meditative state (theta) and there was possibly some regression work done during the session.

The next client that we scanned had focussed a lot of her energy on developing herself spiritually and intuitively, however, it was evident from the scan below, Example 5, that she had not processed an emotional blockage relating to the direction her life had taken, this was confirmed when she revealed that she had difficulty coming to terms with an unsuccessful relationship from a few years earlier.

The orange colour on her throat also indicated that she had difficulty expressing herself in this regard and found it too traumatic to talk about the situation.

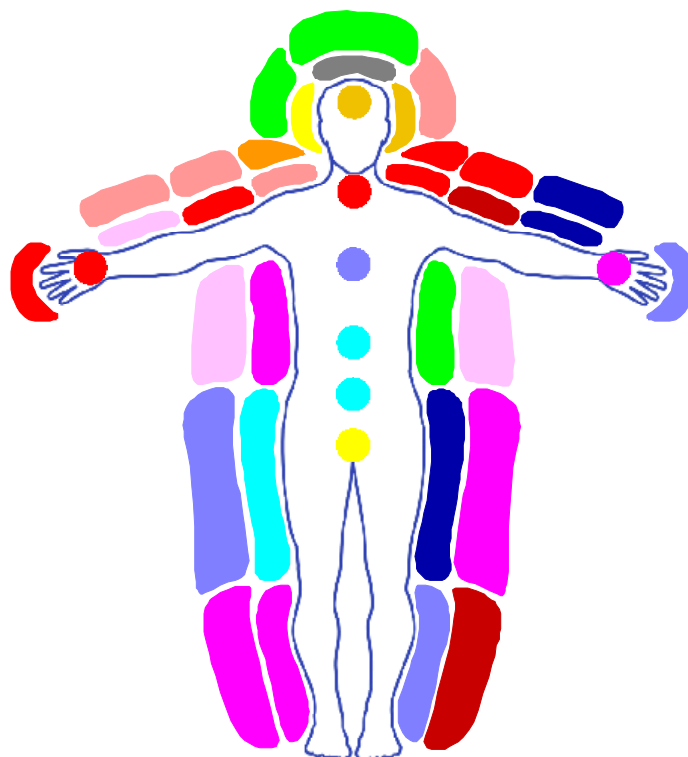

Example 5 – before healing.

I also asked her if she had problems or pain with the left shoulder and neck, (the burgundy colour close to the orange on the throat), which she confirmed. She stated, however, that she was restructuring her life in order to lessen her responsibilities

Burgundy in the aura indicates that there is restructure either going on or needed in order to meet one's goals. She knew what she needed to do (indicated by the aqua and navy on the right hip) but found it stressful following through intuitively (the purple and red on the right lower leg).

Example 6 – after the healing.

As you can see by the image in Example 6 there is a marked difference in the energy field after her healing with William. Noticeably the black/grey from the left hip has dissipated, the throat chakra has been activated, the stress connecting to moving forward intuitively has also dissipated and again we see the grey/black around the crown chakra indicating a deep meditative state (theta) was reached during the healing. The burgundy/blue around the left lower leg indicates to me that she now knows how to restructure her past in order to move forward and follow through intuitively.

During this whole process of scanning the clients before and after their healing sessions and scanning William Two Feathers there was very little conversation. When working with my own clients I use the RFI™ as a benchmark, not only for myself but for my client, who can see where change is taking place.

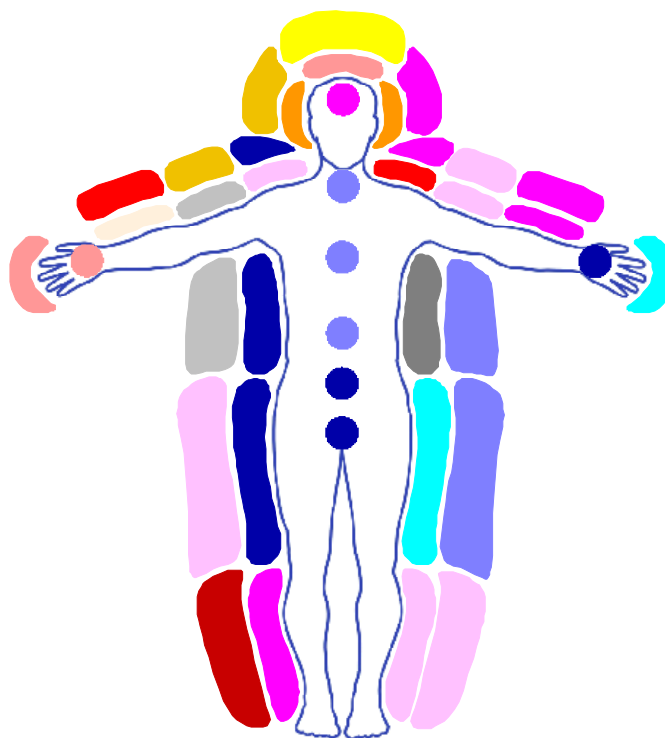

A typical consult involves me scanning my client, analysing the data and advising them what the various colours mean both psychologically and physiologically and the therapy is dependent on what they have presented with and what they are needing. Often there is a shift in consciousness during the analysis of the bio-energy when counselling will suffice, however, for more complex issues psychotherapy or hypnotherapy may be necessary. During a hypnotherapy session I will also work with their energy field. Some clients aren't interested in seeing their aura, they know they need healing and we get straight into some energy work and it's obvious from the examples we have seen so far that William Two Feather's energy healing techniques are having a marked effect on his client's energy.

What was also fascinating working with William was that I would analyse and interpret the energy for his client without him being present and then he would see his client and it wasn't until after they left that we would compare our findings. In every one of the cases we saw that day we did not differ on one of them and neither had either one of us met these people before. William, Peter and myself were visitors to Adelaide and were only there for the festival. Peter and I were not surprised with the findings because we had worked with the RFI™ system for many years and we found the accuracy of the feedback astounding.

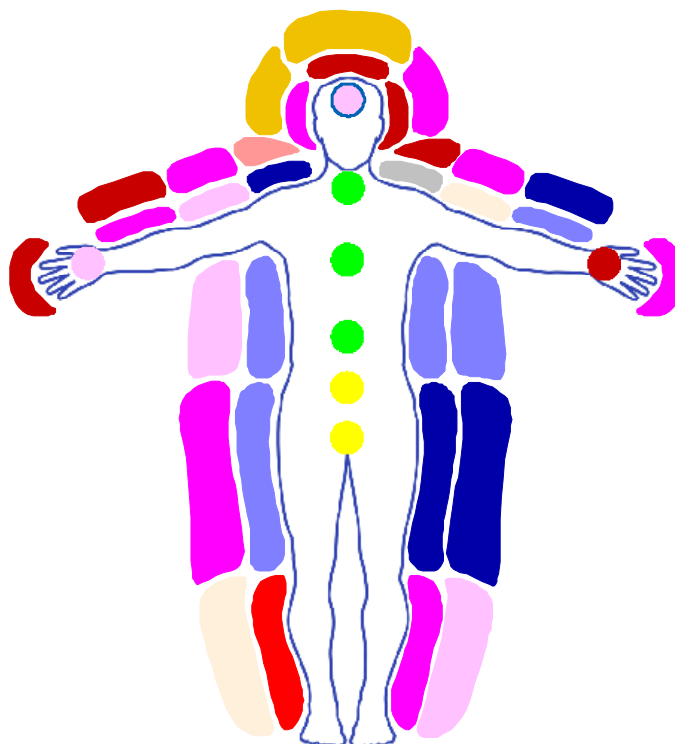

The lady shown in Example 7, is quite empathetic and senses the energy in and around her environment. She picks up on other people's emotional states and has difficulty detaching from them which causes her confusion.

The orange around her head indicates that she is focused on overcoming emotional trauma but the healing is yet to be completed. The left neck and shoulder were painful and tense where the colour red is shown. This lady also has difficulty in following her intuition which she finds difficult due to analysing everything and finds it easier to think rather than feel.

Example 7 – before.

Example 8 - after

Once again it is obvious after the healing session with William that her energy field is quite different and the chakra system is activated and healing. The colour green on the chakras indicates that on a physical/health level that there is an increase in blood flow to that part of the body or to the particular glandular system connected to the chakra. The colour yellow indicates health and vitality as well as a positive and healthy outlook.

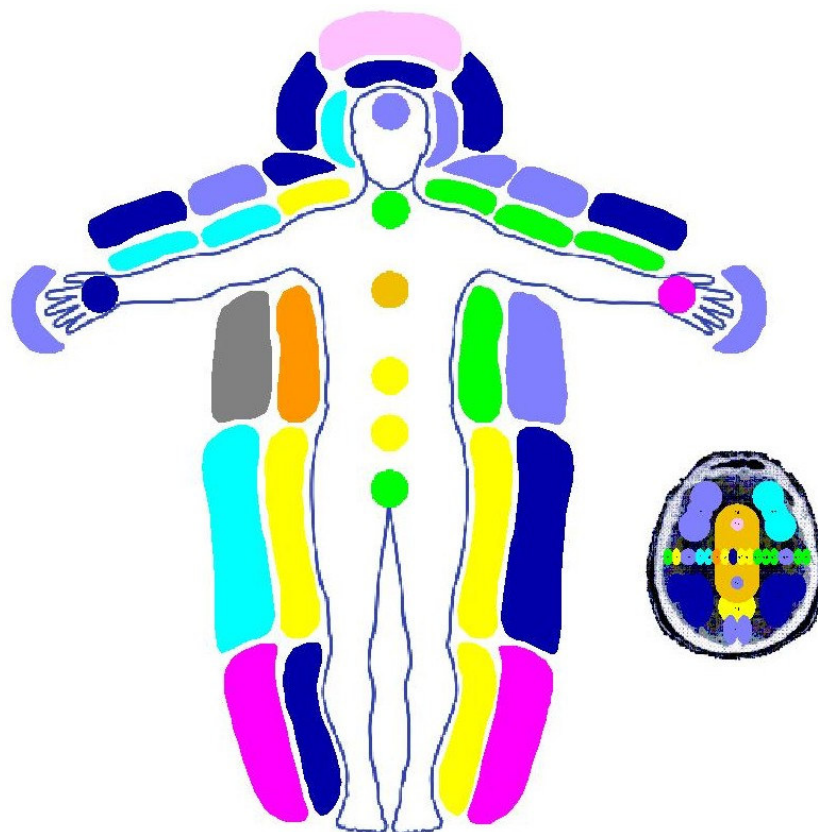

I could write pages and pages and give a holistic analysis of the entire aura and brain image, however, this is not the purpose or focus this time, what I am endeavouring to show you is the difference in the energy fields of each client before and after the healing sessions with William Two Feathers. Not being present in the room when the healing was taking place, I had no idea what William was doing and how he was doing it and we didn't get a lot of time to discuss findings at the end of the day either because we all had commitments.

We did meet up with William almost a year later, this time it was in Melbourne. We had relocated from Noosa, Queensland to Melbourne, Victoria where we run our holistic healing business and William was visiting the city prior to his departure back to the United States. We received a call from him inviting us to give a presentation to a group of psychologists and health practitioners on the work we had done with him in Adelaide.

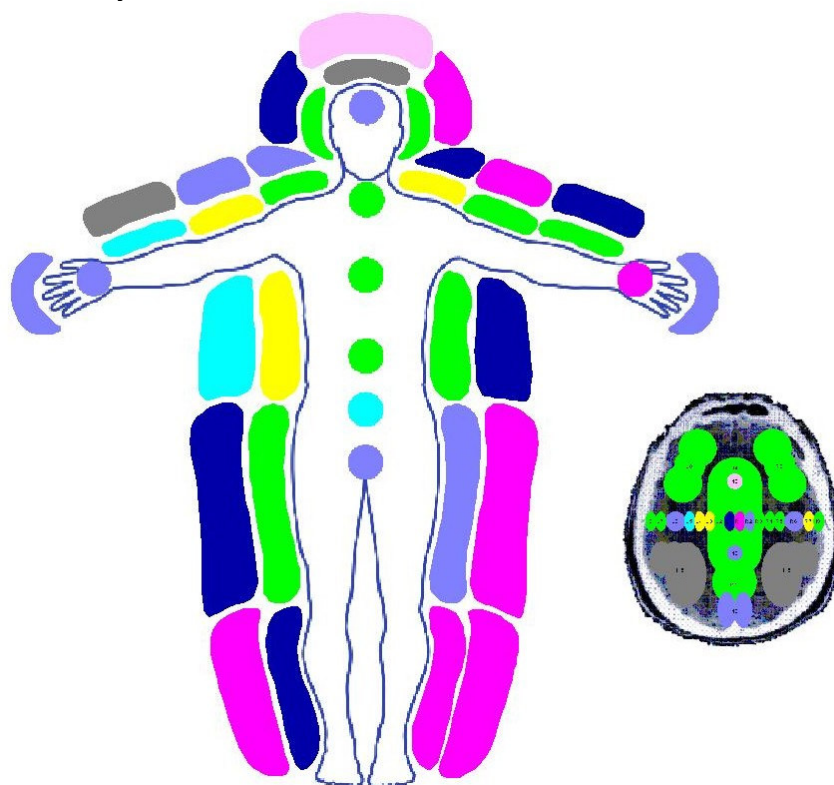

It was during this time that I learned more about William's methods and how he worked and after his presentation I decided to have a healing session with him. I was and still am a very healthy person and have been for most of my life so I did not go with any particular symptom or reason other than wanting to experience.

The following evening at an arranged place and time I met up with William at the clinic where he was consulting and had a 1 hour healing session with him. Peter scanned me before the session and again afterwards and again you will see by the examples below there is quite a marked difference in the energy field.

Example 9 – before

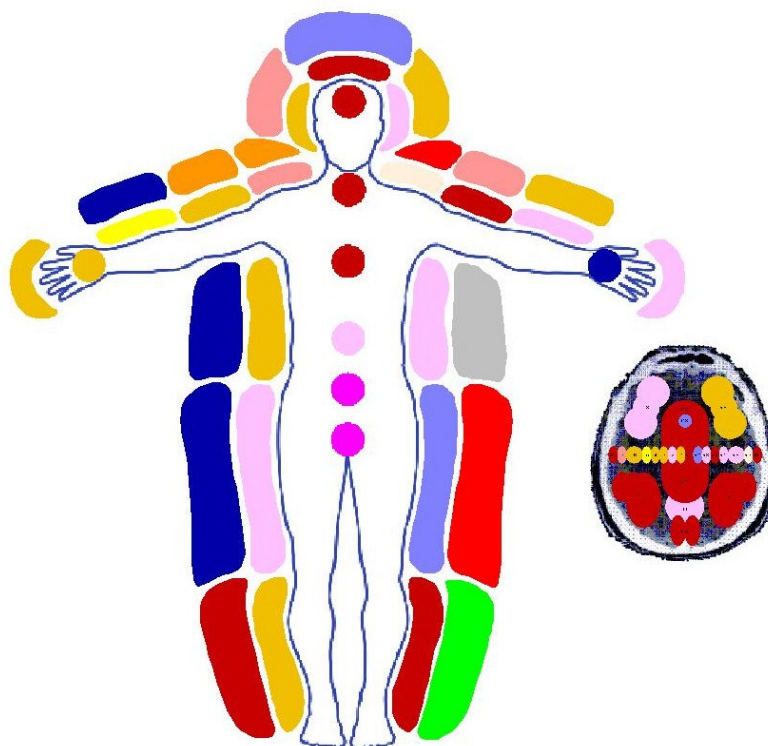

Example 10 – immediately after

Again what is very obvious is the activity of the chakra system and how the biological system is activated or increased and healing energy is directed toward the glandular system connected to the chakras and once again we see the black/grey above the crown chakra where I reached a very deep meditative state (theta) during the healing. The colours overall are a lot softer and the blue and navy colours have been replaced by softer ones.

Example 10 – 12 hours after

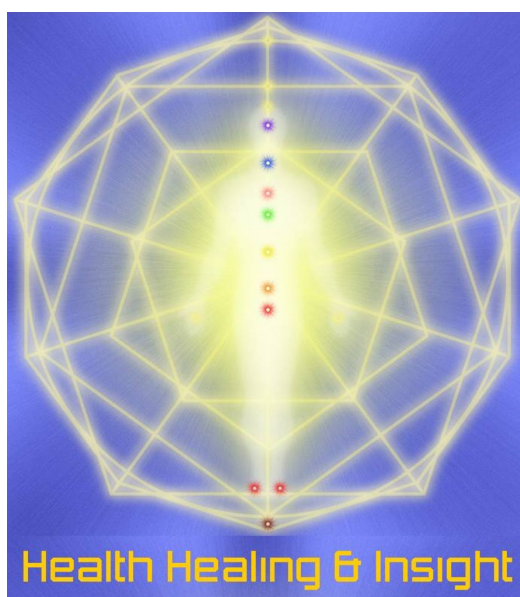

The image in Example 10 was taken the following day 12 hours after the healing session with William. The burgundy on the upper chakras indicate that on an emotional/psychological level that there is quite a deal of restructuring taking place, however, physiologically it indicates that there is regeneration and regrowth taking place on a cellular level. The gold in the aura which wasn't present before or immediately after the healing indicates that there is quite a deal of spiritual/healing energy present in the aura which is not only working on me but emanating from me; discharging from the right side of my body. The amount of burgundy and gold indicates to me that the healing was still taking place 12 hours after the session with William.

From the few examples shown it gives one an indication of the changes that take effect, on more than one level, when the focus is on healing. Whether one wants to call it, energy healing, faith healing, reiki, pranic healing, metaphysical healing, crystal healing, psychospiritual healing, its all coming from the same source. It's the activation of our own healing ability and when two people are focussing on a common goal (as in the case of healing) changes will take place. The manifestation process is thought, emotion and action and when combined with unconditional love and belief, expect changes to occur. The whole manifestation process must be done with unconditional love for it to be positively effective and the example of William after he cleansed his own energy field was indicative of unconditional love.

Many people are doing ground-breaking work in scientifically quantifying energy and the effects of energetic healing, and you cannot have an effect on one level of the body without it affecting the other levels. So whether you work on the spiritual level, the mental, the emotional or the physical, one will affect the all because they are not separate.
